Attorney General: Senator Jeff Sessions, R-Alabama

As the nation’s highest-ranking law enforcement official, the attorney general is charged with protecting the rights of all Americans. Sessions’ record reveals a history of racially hostile remarks, as well as positions on LGBT rights, capital punishment, abortion rights, and presidential authority in times of war that have been contested by the ACLU and other civil rights organizations. Author of the "Immigration Handbook for the New Republican Majority," which blames immigration for the loss of high-paying jobs and high “welfare dependency” in the United States. Also called for a slowdown of legal immigration. https://www.aclu.org/feature/trump-transition-watch

Health and Human Services Secretary: U.S. Rep. Tom Price, R-Georgia

The secretary oversees all operating divisions of the Department of Health and Human Services, which sets and implements policy impacting access to healthcare, including reproductive healthcare and services for people with disabilities. Price has a history of voting to restrict immigrant rights, reproductive rights, LGBTQ rights, human rights, women's rights, and voting rights. He called the Supreme Court ruling in favor of same-sex marriage “not only a sad day for marriage, but a further judicial destruction of our entire system of checks and balances.” https://www.aclu.org/feature/trump-transition-watch

Education Secretary: Betsy DeVos, R-Billionaire Heiress - “Secretary of Privatization”

The secretary has influence of the development and implementation of a range of issues, including civil rights, non-discrimination, and the use of discipline in our nation’s school system. DeVos, 58, grew up in Michigan, where her father, Edgar Prince, made a fortune supplying auto parts to manufacturers. Her brother is Erik Prince, the founder of Blackwater. She never attended public schools, nor have her children. Ardent supporter and funder of efforts for school choice, leading a movement to promote vouchers and charter schools for years. “California celebrates diversity. We don’t deport it.”

-- Kevin de León (D-Los Angeles), California Senate President Pro Tempore

The California Values Act

“SB 54 will ban state and local law enforcement officials from performing the functions of a federal immigration officer. The California Values Act does not prevent state and local departments or agencies from complying with a judicial warrant to transfer violent offenders into federal custody for immigration enforcement purposes.”

2.3 million California residents at risk

Prohibit state and local law enforcement, including school police and security departments, from using their resources for immigration enforcement.

Create “safe zones” at public schools, hospitals and courthouses where immigrant enforcement would be banned

Require state agencies to update their confidentiality policies so that information on individuals’ immigration status is not shared for enforcement purposes.

Due Process for All Act

Undocumented workers make up approximately one-tenth of California’s workforce, contribute $130 billion in the state’s gross domestic product and pay billions in state and local taxes, the resolutions state.

68 percent of noncitizens held in detention facilities do not have legal representation.

Detained people who have lawyers are more than five times more likely to succeed in challenging their deportation.

California as a Refuge of Justice

Goal: Create a comprehensive platform to direct our work with local and state leaders, including elected officials and corporations, to create or strengthen policies and practices that will protect our communities from the impacts of:

- New federal immigration policies
- Cuts in programs
- Tolerance of hate crimes and discrimination

Issues Areas:

- Housing/Displacement
- Jobs & Income
- Immigration/Civil Rights
- Asset Protection & Savings
- Social Safety Net Programs including Health Insurance
California as a Refuge of Justice

How will the expected changes at the federal level impact our communities at the household and community level?

What does a Refuge of Justice look like at the state and local level?

What policy tools (including third rails) do California and local municipalities need to enact in order to truly be a Refuge of Justice?

What do we need to do differently as advocates? As service providers?

Who do we need to work with that we aren’t working with already?

What are our strengths? What capacity do we need to build? What support do we need?
The University of California system announced on December 1 that campus police will not undertake joint efforts with any law enforcement agencies to investigate students suspected of breaking federal immigration laws.

Police officers at the UC’s 10 campuses will not contact, detain, question or arrest any individual solely on the basis of immigration status, except as required by law, the school system said in a statement.

UC President Janet Napolitano is the former secretary of Homeland Security under President Obama.
As the largest public university system in the nation, Cal State's mission to provide accessibility to higher education and embrace the diversity of its 470,000 students remains unchanged, Chancellor Timothy P. White said during a Board of Trustees meeting in Long Beach on November 16.

Unless forced to by law, he said, Cal State "will not enter into agreements with state or local law enforcement agencies, Homeland Security or any other federal department for the enforcement of federal immigration law."

"Our police departments will not honor immigration hold requests," he added. "Our university police do not contact, detain, question or arrest individuals solely on the basis of being ... a person that lacks documentation."
Incoming Chancellor Eloy Ortiz Oakley joined with leaders of the University of California and the California State University to formally request that President-elect Donald J. Trump preserve the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) program. The system serves 2.1 million students in 131 colleges, the nation’s largest system of higher education.

- The Chancellor’s Office will not release any personally identifiable student information, including any data related to immigration status, without a judicial warrant, subpoena or court order, unless authorized by the student or required by law.

- The Chancellor’s Office will not cooperate with any federal effort to create a registry of individuals based on any protected characteristics such as religion, national origin, race, or sexual orientation.

- The Chancellor’s Office will continue to advocate for educational opportunities for all students in the community college system, regardless of immigration status, at the state and federal level.

- District police departments should not detain, question or arrest any individual solely on the basis of (suspected) undocumented immigration status.

- Districts should not cooperate with any federal effort to create a registry of individuals based on any protected characteristics such as religion, national origin, race or sexual orientation.

- No confidential student records should be released without a judicial warrant, subpoena or court order, unless authorized by the student or required by law.

Goes Beyond the 2013 California Trust Act

“Deportations previously reached record levels under President Barack Obama – more than 2.5 million by 2015. California officials responded with the “Trust Act,” a 2013 law limiting the state’s cooperation with federal enforcement, including forbidding state and local agencies from holding undocumented immigrants at the request of federal authorities.” -- Sacramento Bee
